Ayodhya Punch Mark

10. (2.5x)

Malla Janapada Punch Mark

11. (2.5x)

10. Ancient, Ayodhya, Gomati-Ghaghara River Valley (c. 6th-5th Century BC), Silver PMC, 5.12 gms, 14.43x27.64 mm, Obverse: Central/Main punches of 'three loops around a central blob' and 'wheel', Reverse: Uniface, References # Hardaker, Non-Imperial Series, AY 2, pg. 115, Rajgor, Series # 82, pg. 186, very fine for the type, extremely rare.

This coinage was first known from a hoard of 50 coins, found in 1930s from a village in Ayodhya (U.P.). The hoard was purchased by Lucknow Museum. Later, some pieces were acquired by Bharat Kala Bhavan, Varanasi. The coins are very archaic, hot-struck, based on a single (no fractions known) heavy weight system and have two symbols (the 2nd symbol being smaller in size). This coinage has been tentatively associated with Ikshavaku dynasty of Ayodhya. This coinage is probably the earliest coinage of India (Lahiri – 1973). This series was a very short lived one and is therefore, one of the rarest in the entire punch marked series. The archaic manufacturing technique (which is un-matched with any contemporary series of punch marked coins) vouches for its antiquity.

10. Estimated Price - ₹2,20,000 – 2,25,000

11. Ancient, Malla Janapada, Ghaghara-Gandak River Valley (c. 6th-5th Century BC), Silver PMC, 4.98 gms, 14.55x19.26 mm, Obverse: Main punch of two plus symbols symmetrically overlapping, Other punches of orb with a bold dot inside, flower and wheel with spokes, Reverse: Uniface, Rajgor # Type 1111, pg. 168, very fine, extremely rare.

The Mallas were among the 16 prominent Janapadas of India as per AnguttaraNikaya. Two branches of these people were settled in Pava and Kusinara respectively. These were contemporary to Buddha and claimed/received a portion of Buddha's ashes after his funeral and upon which, a stupa was erected by them. The area of the Mallas was in present day Deoria/Kushinagar/Gorakhpur districts of U.P. Extensive remains pertaining to the Mallas have been un-earthed in Kasia (Kushinagar) near Gorakhpur.

These exceedingly rare PMCs have been found in Narhan hoard (near Gola Bazar) and in another hoard from Gorakhpur. This series is one of the rarest and historically most important (due to their contemporaneity/ association with Buddha) series in the entire punch mark series. It may be pertinent to mention that 2 gm approx. coins (# Rajgor Series 72, Pg 170), which are often encountered in trade in name of "Malla", actually belong to the Pauravas of Kaushambi (Mitchiner – 2004, Hardaker – 2019) and not to the Mallas. The coins attributed to Malla are all near 5.0 – 5.5 gm wt standard (# Rajgor Series 70) or their half at around 2.6 – 2.8 gm. wt standard (# Rajgor Series 71). Present coin is a full unit of 4.98 gm. of Rajgor's Series 70 (Pg. 168) and belongs to the Mallas.

11. Estimated Price - ₹2,20,000 – 2,25,000

Vanga Janapada Punch Mark

12. (3x)

13. (2.5x)

12. Ancient, Vanga Janapada, Punch Marked Coinage, Lower Ganga Delta Region, Mahasthangarh Series (c. 4th Century BC), Silver 1/2 Karshapana, 2.01 gms, 19.11 mm, Obverse: Four main punches of Six-arm, Sun, Bird and Taurine, Reverse: Uniface, Reference # Hardaker, Non-Imperial Series, BR15 pg. 258, extremely fine, extremely rare.

Vanga was an ancient janapada of high antiquity. As per Rajgor (Pg. 29), the Vanga janapada is mentioned in Aitareya Aranyak, Baudhayana Dharmasutra, Panini's Ashtadhyayi, the Bhagvata Purana and the Kavyamimansha. Going by the Magadhan Six-armed symbol and Sun symbol on this PMC series, Hardaker opines that these were perhaps issued by the Mahasthangarh region as a vassal of the Magadhan state, which might have annexed the Vanga territory in course of its imperial expansion. Further, going by the proto-type Six-arm symbol, he suggests the time period of this series to overlap with the early expansion phase of Magadhan state i.e. mid 4th century BC. However, it is pertinent to mention that around 2.0 gm., this series may hardly be associated with Karshapana weight standard (as claimed in various publications viz. # Hardaker – 2019 Pg.256, # Rajgor Series 5, Pg. 31). This coinage, in all likelihood pertains to a period when the coinage of 4.00 gm. wt std. (e.g. various issues of Kosala) and 2.00 gm. wt std. (e.g. issues of the Pauravas of Kaushambi) were being issued and hence, the coinage under reference, though having Magadhan influence, might be earlier than 4th century BC.

12. Estimated Price - ₹1,80,000 – 2,00,000

13. Ancient, Andhra Janapada (5th-4th Century BC), Silver Repousse PMC, 0.23 gms, 9.47 mm, Obverse: Elephant to left with trunk hanging down, Reverse: Outline / impression of obverse punch (due to repousse technique having been used). The design of the elephant motif is similar to that on the half karshapanas of the Andhra Janapada series, Rajgor # Series 3, Type 29, Pg. 27, Un-cleaned (Nice original patina), very fine, extremely rare.

13. Estimated Price - ₹30,000 – 35,000

Ala al-din Alam Shah

Delhi Sultan, Ala al-din Alam Shah (AH 849-855, 1445-1451 AD), Billon Tanka, 9.60 gms, 17.00 mm, No Mint, AH (8)52, Obv: alam shah sultan bin muhammad shah bi hadrat delhi, Rev: al-khalifa amir al-mu minin khulidat khilafatuhu, Alauddin Alam Shah was the son of Muhammad Shah and was the last ruler of Sayyid dynasty. He was a man of weak and dissolute character and the weakest monarch of the Delhi Sultanate. He ascended the throne with all pomp and splendor as all the chieftains except Bahlul Lodi took an oath of allegiance to him otherwise his dominion was ironically limited for an area. A very strong and mighty ruler was required to control the affairs of the Sultanate and to consolidate the disintegrating empire. But Alam Shah was inefficient and given up to sensual pleasures. He had no ability and capability to control the administration of the Sultanate. As a result of his incompetence he left all the work of administration in the hands of his minister, Hamid Khan, and himself began to live in Badaun. Gradually, Hamid Khan captured all the powers of the Sultanate and became so impertinent that he started ignoring the Sultan. The Sultan conspired against Hamid Khan in order to get rid of him but did not succeed. On the contrary, Hamid Khan invited Bahlol Lodi, Governor of Multan, to invade Delhi. Bahlol Lodi was already looking for such an opportunity. He immediately marched against Delhi and captured power. Hamid Khan was expecting that he would make Bahlol Lodi his puppet but he proved too powerful to bow down before his ambitions. Hamid Khan was imprisoned and killed later. Bahlol Lodi invited Alauddin Alam Shah to get his throne back but he refused politely. He continued to live in Badaun till his death in A.D. 1476. He said to Bahlol, "Since my father called you his son and I have no anxiety for the provision of my few wants, I am content with one Pargana of Badaun and am giving up the empire to you." G&G # D684, very fine+, very rare.

137. Delhi Sultan, Sher Shah Suri (AH 945-952, 1538-1545 AD), Silver Rupee, 11.46 gms, 25.04 mm, Mintless Bengal Type, AH 945, The earliest silver rupee issue, introduced by Sher Shah Suri in 1540 AD, marked the earliest standardized currency in India. Weighing 178 grains of silver, it replaced the earlier tanka. The coin featured legends within a square border on both sides one side displaying the ruler's name and titles, the other often a Persian legend. This reform laid the foundation for future Indian coinage, influencing the Mughal and later currency systems, and contributed to the economic stability of Sher Shah's empire. The Battle of Chausa, fought on June 26, 1539 AD, was a decisive confrontation in which Sher Shah Suri emerged victorious over the Mughal Emperor Humayun. The battle took place near Chausa, approximately 10 miles southwest of Buxar in present-day Bihar, India. In a crushing defeat, Sher Shah's forces routed the Mughal army, compelling Humayun to flee for his life. In his desperate attempt to escape, Humayun famously plunged into the Ganges River. This victory significantly enhanced Sher Shah's standing, both militarily and politically, and led to his proclamation as Sultan, adopting the title Sher Shah. His triumph at Chausa not only marked a turning point in the Mughal-Suri conflict but also solidified Sher Shah's authority, paving the way for his subsequent reforms and rule, which would have a lasting impact on the governance of northern India, G&G # D816 die variant, very fine, very rare.

After the Islamic 'Millennium' of AH 990, Akbar sporadically issued anonymous coins with the name of the denomination written on them. Copper coins with denominations 'Nisfi' (Half Dam), 'Ruba'l' or 'Damra' (1/4 Dam), 'Damri' (1/8th Dam) but without any mint names were struck from AH992/Ilahi 32 onwards. The 'Jital' was the smallest copper coin instituted by Akbar'. According to the 'Ain-i Akbari of Abu'l Fazal, it was only a unit of account equivalent to 1/25th of the Dam, and therefore a denomination whose use was limited only to books. However, in spite of this mention, extremely rare surviving specimens bear proof that this was not entirely the case and coins of this denomination were indeed produced during Akbar's reign. Renowned collector of Mughal coins, the late Dilip Shah, published a couple several years ago in the ONS Newsletter. The date on this coin is the latest amongst the handful specimens which survive.

Of particular note is an early issue bearing a distinctive couplet not found on any other coins of this ruler. This issue uniquely features the title Thalith Sahib Qiran – "The Third Lord of the Auspicious Conjunction." This appellation places Farrukhsiyar in a distinguished lineage, following Timur Gurgan (Tamerlane) as the first Sahib Qiran, and Shah Jahan as the second. The coin thus not only reflects imperial ambition but also serves as a rare numismatic expression of dynastic symbolism and celestial legitimacy, similar to Zeno # 83753, KM # 376.1, extra fine, rare.
